

Deborah Norville

Deborah Norville is a two-time Emmy© winner and New York Times Best Selling author. She is known to millions as anchor of Inside Edition, the nation's top-rated syndicated newsmagazine. Norville is also author of a number of books including the New York Times Best-Seller, Thank You Power: Making the SCIENCE of Gratitude Work for YOU, followed by The Power of Respect, detailing the measurable benefits that result from respectful behavior. In 2016,

Norville, the longest serving anchor on American television, was inducted into the Broadcasting and Cable Hall of Fame.

Norville is a member of the Council for Foreign Relations, the Women's Forum of New York, and Women Corporate Directors. She regularly addresses business and community groups and is active with a number of charities including the Broadcasters Foundation of America. Norville is a Director of the Viacom Corporation where she serves on the Compensation Committee. She is a 4.0 summa cum laude graduate of the University of Georgia. She can be reached via her website www.DeborahNorville.com